Kennedy Promises:
U.S. Will Strengthen Defense of Europe

Addresses Leaders Of NATO
President Has Final Talks With De Gaulle

By MERRILL SMITH
PARIS (UPI) — President Kennedy today called for a stronger NATO force and pledged himself to "strengthen and maintain the United States commitments to the defense forces of Europe."

Standing bareheaded in the rain, the President spoke to the chief officers of Supreme Allied Headquarters Europe. At his side stood U.S. Air Force Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander.

"I hope in the years ahead that our communal alliance will have greater strength and force than it ever has had, and I assure you that the United States intends to do its full part," Kennedy said.

Kennedy began his day with the visit to SHAPE headquarters at Fontainebleau, just outside Paris, and then returned to the Elysee

Crowd Waits Two Hours For Gangemi

By EUGENE J. SCANLON
Supervisor Gangemi was wounded last night. Not about the outcome of the June 13 runoff election—the winning majority he predicts for himself climbs higher every day.

But he was running nearly two hours behind schedule along last night's campaign trail, and he was afraid that when he got to the last stop in Hudson City somebody would be there.

THEY WERE THERE, though. 400 strong, and they staged a late hour political rally a half hour after midnight.

As he was driving back to Jersey City voters will go to the polls June 13 to choose between two states of at-large candidates for the three city-wide seats on the new mayor-council.

The Democratic Council trio, Mrs. Evelyn Hollender, James C. Rochford and Assemblyman John J. Kijewski are pitted against their Community Charter Council counterparts, Councilman Vincent Plant, Dr. Anthony DeLisio, and James E. Swierzbinski.

In the May 9 balloting, they finished as follows: Rochford, 47,296; Mrs. Hollender, 43,972; Kijewski, 43,976; Plant, 39,735; DeLisio, 39,087, and Swierzbinski, 38,245.

Berry Seeks Vote of the Housewife

By ROBERT E. O'BRIEN
Every night will be ladies night for the district captains of Commissioner Berry's organization in the West Side Ward from now until the June 13 run-off election.

Mrs. Housewife will be the target of the Berry campaign to get out the vote. Unlike her great victory of 1959 when she successfully put over the charter study commissioners, Berry contends, Mrs. Housewife stayed at home May 9.

TO PROVE his point, he had a team of clerks and tabulators search the registry of the West Side ward last night. They found there were approximately 8,000 registered voters, 7,000 at-home voters in this ward.

Standing bareheaded in the rain, the President spoke to the chief officers of Supreme Allied Headquarters Europe. At his side stood U.S. Air Force Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander.

Kennedy began his day with the visit to SHAPE headquarters at Fontainebleau, just outside Paris, and then returned to the Elysee Palace in the capital for his final conference with President Charles de Gaulle.

Prepare Final Statement

The two presidents met in private for a half hour and then called in their chief advisers to approve a final statement on the accomplishments of Kennedy’s visit.

Kennedy called Secretary of State Dean Rusk in from Washington, U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson from Moscow and roving U.S. Ambassador Averell Harriman from Geneva to meet with him tonight.

Man Held In Beer Sale

Herman W. Ruch, 56, of 241 North St., a Jersey City delicatessen owner, was to appear in Municipal Court today on charges of selling beer to minors accused of assaulting Patrolman Chester Babula on Tuesday.

He also was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old, one of the boys who allegedly purchased the beer.

Police said Ruch sold two and one half cases of canned beer to the youths when they made three trips to his store at 74 Nelson Ave., Tuesday.

Entered in Low Hurdles, Broad Jump as Well as 100 Yard Dash

Prep's Davis to Try Two New Events in State Meet Tomorrow

By CAS RAKOWSKI

Something new . . . something different.

That's what's in store for Wellington Davis in the New Jersey State Interscholastic track and field championships tomorrow at Rutgers University.

Davis, who has been running like he's plain scared of everybody, will take part in the low hurdles and broad jump for the first time this season. And the senior from St. Peter's Prep will have to be at his absolute best in these two events and the 100-yard dash if St. Peter's is to return home with the parochial title.

A TOTAL of 11 Hudson County schools has entered the state carnival. St. Peter's and St. Aloysius loom as the top point getters from Hudson with St. Peter's the slight favorite over Don Bosco, Seton Hall and St. Al's in the parochial division. Also entered are Marist with 13 participants, St. Michael's (JC) St. Michael's (UC), and St. Mary's.

Four public school titles also will be at stake. All divisions are loaded with power houses so the task of Snyder and Kearny in Group IV, Lincoln in Group III and Ferris in Group I is a most arduous one. Emerson, with Joe Azzolini the only runner for the Bulldogs, rounds out Hudson's contingent.

THE SURPRISE of the outdoor season, Davis will be a slight favorite in the 100-yard dash against Jerry Krumeich of Essex Catholic, another parochial powerhouse. Davis then will take part in the low hurdles where he also is the choice over Len Zdanowicz of St. Michael's (UC). In the broad jump, Dick Horner of Camden Catholic is favored. Davis, an unknown in the event, is given an excellent chance of placing.

A sparkling performance by Davis will go a long way in deciding the title for the Prep. Frank Koch, who like Davis is entered in the 100, is expected to take second in the 220 behind Krumeich while also placing in the broad jump.

Bob Gilvey and Jerry Smith, winners of the 440 and 880 respectively in the Jersey City meet, are good choices. Marist's Al Ganci and St. Michael's (JC) Richie Harvey will be Gilvey's top competition while Har-
Zdanowicz, defending parochial champ in the two hurdle events, is favored in the high hurdles against John Spellman and Marty Feeney of St. Al’s while Frank Salzer of St. Al’s is a slight choice over George Keenan of St. Peter’s in the javelin. Keenan is the county champ while Salzer is city kingpin. Jim Kearny of St. Al’s remains the pick in the discus and has to be highly regarded in the shot put. Marist has point getters in Richie Findlay in the dashes and Al Ganci in the 440. Snyder’s Al Behringer in the mile and Gus Johnson in the dashes are the top Snyder performers while Kearny will call on Bill Mitchell in the 440. Ken Rawson in the 880 and Bill Williams in the mile.

Lincoln, city champion, has potent point scorers in Jim Corbin and Don Hampton in the dashes and broad jump, Leon Bell in the mile, Ron Jones in the high jump and hurdles and Avon Long in the 440. Ferris’ top performers are expected to be Ken Warner, Jerome Matthews and Nate Jackson.

Bookie Tax
To Improve Breed

London — “Improving the breed” is an old euphemism for horse-race betting, but since Britain liberalized her gambling laws it’s quite literally correct.

A new tax on bookmakers is to support the advancement of horse racing.

Guest Speaker — New York football Giant halfback Alex Webster will be the principal speaker tonight at the monthly St. Peter’s Prep First Friday club get-together. A buffet dinner starting at 6:30 will be followed by Webster’s talk. A formal introduction for the class of 1961 into the alumni association will highlight the program.
'Iron Man' Lou Dead 20 Years Today

A Baseball Era Died With Gehrig

By MILTON RICHMAN

This was the day it all started and all ended for Lou Gehrig.

It was on June 2, 1925 that he took over first base for the New York Yankees and began his amazing record of playing in 2,130 consecutive games.

And it was 20 years ago today, on June 2, 1941, that baseball's famous 'Iron Horse' finally wore down and died in his Riverdale, N.Y., apartment.

Most of the current Yankees still were kids when Gehrig died and the only way they knew him was by his reputation. One of them—Coach Frank Crosetti, however—knew him intimately, as a competitor, a teammate and as a friend.

"I THINK GEHRIG MUST have felt sorry for me," Crosetti recalls. "When I first came up to the Yankees I was a scared kid and never said a word.

"Lou noticed it and he'd always go out of his way to help me. If he'd see me getting dressed after a ball game, with obviously no place to go, he'd say, 'C'mon kid, we'll go out and have dinner together.'"

The story of how Gehrig got started on his consecutive game streak is a familiar one.

Wally Pipp, the Yankees' regular first baseman, showed up at the ball park with a headache, and Miller Huggins, who then was the manager, said to Gehrig:

"You've been hollering for a chance to play, so now you've got it. Get out there on first base."

GEHRIG GOT OUT there and no one ever was able to get him off for the next 14 years.

Crosetti knew how Lou had gotten his start and wasn't about to let the same thing happen to him. He happened to Pipp.

"I'm going to try to get Gehrig's record and I'm going to try to get it right."

Two Greats — Lou and The Babe

HE DROVE ME to his home in New Rochelle and when we got there he told his mother I was sick. She fixed me some hot wine—I'll never forget it—and I slept there that night. That hot wine must be an old German remedy. It sure did the trick. I was in great shape the next day.

Gehrig hit a total of 493 homers during his career and he was not what could be called a friend of the pitchers.

"He used to feel sorry for them though, if they were taking too much of a beating," Crosetti said. "The worst thing anyone could do to him, however, was knock him down with a pitch."

I REMEMBER Johnny Allen of Cleveland sitting him down one day. I can just see Lou getting up now. He gripped that bat as if he was going to break it in two. And he looked out toward Allen as if he was going to kill him.

"Gehrig swung at the next pitch that was over and I swear he must have hit it nine miles. Lou just trotted around the bases. The look on his face said, 'That'll teach you to throw at me.'"

On May 2, 1938, with the Yankees in Detroit, Gehrig decided to snap his string and bench himself. babe Dahlgren took over first base and Iron Man Lou never was to play again.

LATER, WHEN he was given a day at Yankee Stadium, Gehrig brushed the tears out of his eyes and said, in a voice choked with emotion:

"I think I'm the luckiest man on the face of the earth."

It was a bone disease that finally cut Lou down.

Death caught him in his sleep. He would have given it too much of a battle had he been awake.
Amiopoise May Be Entered

Carry Back to Face 6 or 7 Rivals in Belmont Tomorrow

Carry Back, the hero of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, will face at least six rivals tomorrow when he seeks a sweep of the triple crown races in the 93rd running of the Belmont stakes.

Hitting Away, Bal Musette, Flutterby, Dr. Miller, Guadalcanal, and Sherluck are also expected to be named for the mile and one-half classic before the entry box closes at Belmont Park.

THE FIELD MAY number eight starters if Robert Lehman, a New York investment banker, decides to start his speedy colt, Amiopoise, who scampered to a 10 length victory in the Jersey Derby at Garden State Park on Tuesday.

Lehman admitted he wasn't certain that Amiopoise could run his best race with only a four day rest.

“I don’t want to hurt the horse,” he said. “With the Carry Back in there, it shapes up as a darned tough race.”

Carry Back is an odds on favorite to become the ninth horse in history to sweep the triple crown events. That last galloper to turn the trick was Citation in 1948.

ALTHOUGH CARRY BACK is a small, skinny colt who doesn’t look as if he had the strength to run across the street, he proved in his come from behind victories in the Derby and Preakness that he should be able to to negotiate the Belmont’s “test of the champion.”

Jack Price, who earlier this week turned down a $1,200,000 offer for Carry Back, claims that “barring bad racing luck, I don’t believe that he can be beaten in the Belmont.”

Intelligence Blunders

In World Wars I and II the armed forces intelligence service was highly specialized, employing many spies, counter spies, language experts and so on. It was different in the Civil War, when Pinkerton detectives conducted espionage in Mr. Lincoln’s army.

Maj. E. J. Allen, one of Gen. George B. McClellan’s obscure staff officers, actually was Allen Pinkerton, head of the Pinkerton Agency. As a pré-war railroad president, McClellan had used Pinkerton’s railroad detective service. It was natural that he should call in Pinkerton to head the army secret service.

This was a mistake which cost McClellan dearly. Pinkerton’s imagination, so helpful in hunting robbers, proved a great trouble to the army. His operatives, using passes written in invisible ink, got behind the rebel lines all right, but the information they sent back was often so terribly wrong as to be disastrous.

“McClellan,” says no less an authority than Bruce Catton, “would have been infinitely better off if he had had no spy system whatever.” That sentiment is still echoed in our day — which indicates that intelligence agencies, like other human institutions, are fallible particularly in the Caribbean.

When Trujillo Slumped

While there are numerous points upon which a deadly serious indictment of Rafael Trujillo’s regime in the Dominican Republic can be made, we suspect his place in United States’ popular opinion was fixed largely by the antics of his son.

Who can forget the wild spending and gaudy show of the young man with fancy military titles, his own naval establishment, and a relentless eagerness to meet only the prettiest and most glamorous of girls. No nick from the deepest corn country ever looked sillier.

When all the benefactions and machinations of The Benefactor have been mellowed by time, we suspect the saga of the playboy son will endure still. It’s a fate worse than assassination for a dictator.
