Midnight Mass With The Pope On Christmas Eve

Each Christmas, the successor of St Peter, celebrates Mass at the Basilica of St Peter as the Vigil Mass of Christmas. Traditionally celebrated at midnight, this year the Mass will begin at 9:15pm.

Unfortunately, tickets for this event are usually reserved months in advance by those who planned ahead and therefore if you don't have a ticket now, it's highly unlikely that you will be able to get in.

But Fr. Joe probably has extra tickets if you need one!

However, don't worry, the Vatican will broadcast the Mass on jumbo screens in St Peter's Square and thousands come to watch it out in the crisp night air. The atmosphere is always very special and it is a great and unique experience of the dawn of Christmas.
